Glenda Bonin is a busy professional storyteller and touring artist. She is multi-talented, and skillfully combines story with other disciplines to deliver tailor-made programs and performances. She enjoys working in both rural and urban settings throughout Nevada. Glenda brings more than thirty-five years of experience as a performer and producer to a variety of venues including: concerts, festival performances, conferences, workshops, seminars, community events, library shows, school residencies and private celebrations.

Since 2014, Glenda has expanded her performance repertoire to include creative aging programs for senior living audiences. She has perfected twenty-four different programs for assisted living and memory care groups. The storytelling sessions encourage active participation, verbal stimulation and memory recall, and are quite popular. Most recently, Glenda has developed a workshop, "Artifacts and Ancestors: the Quest for Personal Stories," to help motivate other artists to consider working with this under served and growing demographic.

Her storytelling programs include original/personal stories, multicultural stories and traditional folktales. Some of the workshops she has delivered include: "How to Find and Tell Family Stories," an enhancement to school language arts; "Energize and Empower Students through Storytelling," on how to tap into student enthusiasm during the learning process; and "Storytelling Workshops for Drama Students," focusing on expanding dramatic skills by understanding the art of story.
