

A Letter to Las Vegas about the Raiders

Antonius van Kemenade

Under the glistening desert sky
A new sports team comes by
They strike fear into many opponents' eyes
Whenever they come to try...

A bright, futuristic stadium emerges
And as sports fans across the state converge
The gridiron is where warriors will clash
And win until they make a splash

The city of lights with dice in the air
Showed encouragement with true love and care
Here comes a new franchise
They enter a new realm and rise

Our city shows true commitment and pride
As we all have each other's side
And as proud residents of Sin City
The new heights will sure make it busy

We come together to let a new story be told
Victories and trials may unfold
We welcome the silver and black with open arms
As this new franchise will surely be charmed
